Fremlin Street SPONSOR: THE VANCOUVER SUN Victor Eric Design

□ This spectacular 5,400-square-foot custom-designed home is a piece of art. The Shaughnessy home was designed by the award-winning team at Victor Eric Design. From the planning and architectural exterior of the home, to the attention to detail in the interior, designer Eric Lee offers a stunning display of understated elegance. The open, spacious interior can only be described as modern sophistication. It offers superb quality and workmanship throughout and features unique details such as columns and railings and different levels rather than walls to delineate the public spaces.

Two remarkable features compete for the eye as one enters the home: The main highlight is the dramatic veil of water which cascades down three storeys with a curved maple wood staircase as a backdrop; then there's the fabulous see-through, built-in aquarium in the dining room, which is made out of rich walnut. It doubles as a divider between the living room and dining room.

The large theatre room is resplendent with curved, fabric covered walls and custom-designed millwork built-ins to hide all the audio-visual components. Throughout this stunning home, which was built with entertainment in mind, the designers used exotic wood veneers and leather wall coverings, providing impressive understated sophistication to every corner. REDA

SHOWCASE pianos

Hand-made in Italy, each Fazioli requires 3 years to complete. Fazioli pianos are made of spruce wood from the 'Val di Fiemme' forest in Italy – where Antonio Stradivari harvested the wood for his violins.
